Court Room Enactment

The Constitution Club will organize a "Court Room Enactment" on 2nd November, 2018. The event is organized on the occasion of Diwali Celebration. The script of the court-room enactment: -

The skit will be divided into two segments that depict the expectations held by an average man around the flamboyance and the grandeur of a courtroom, where he imagines the Judge to be a man straight out of bollywood, probably mughl-e-aazam. He expects lousy court staff, he expects people chewing paan, he expects to be disappointed in the legal system. This story revolves around a man who is summoned to the court for the alleged commission of an offence, where he imagines the court to be the overly dramatized in-formal, almost comical institution. There's an exchange of all the mainstream courtroom bollywood dialogues and then few. The reality however sobers the idea down to the formal, organised and the justice oriented machinery the Courts really are. The judges have a sense of humour but they hardly let that come in the way of justice. The judge hears the man, addresses his intention of committing the offence, and makes him understand the meaning of the term justice. The judge sends a better man out of the courtroom than the one who walked in with all sorts of half cooked bollywood baked masala ideas.

The Constitutional Club invites you to grace the occasion.
